Join us for an evening looking back at two fires of historical importance... the results of which have touched all of our lives, every day.... And have surprising Dover connections.

The Great Boston Fire, November 1872
The Cocoanut Grove Fire, November 1942

Stephanie Schorow is a journalist, writing instructor, and the author of eight nonfiction books on a variety of topics in Boston history. They include: The Great Boston Fire: The Inferno that Nearly Incinerated the City (Globe Pequot); Inside the Combat Zone: The Stripped Down Story of Boston's Most Notorious Neighborhood (Union Park Press); and Drinking Boston: A History of the City and its Spirits (Union Park Press), and, with Beverly Ford, The Boston Mob Guide: Hitmen, Hoodlum and Hideouts. In October 2022, she will publish an updated version of her 2005 book. The Cocoanut Grove Fire: A Boston Tragedy. Her novel Cat Dreaming will be published in 2023 by Small Town Girl Press. She currently coordinates a Citizen Journalism Program for Malden's Urban Media Arts and serves as a communication writer for Ariadne Labs in Boston. She has worked as an editor, reporter and/or freelance correspondent for the Boston Herald, the Associated Press, the Boston Globe, and other newspapers. She shares her home in Medford with two cats that like to walk over her keyboard when she is typing.
